

Anthology Statement Regarding CBS/Paramount Fan Film Guidelines

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

Highgate Falls, VT – Jim Bray, creator and Executive Producer of Anthology and lifelong Star Trek fan issued a statement regarding the guideline for fan film creation set forth by CBS/Paramount.

“For nearly fifty years, thousands of fans from around the world have celebrated Star Trek by sharing their own books, paintings, costumes, music and films with each other with acceptance from Gene Roddenberry, but neither opposition nor guidance from CBS or Paramount Studios. On June 23rd, 2016, CBS/Paramount published, for the first time, guidelines for future fan films that are so restrictive that no existing tribute to their franchise could comply. Anthology understands the events that forced CBS/Paramount into releasing these guidelines and recognizes CBS/Paramount has the right to create and enforce guidelines regarding their Intellectual Property but can not continue to produce quality stories under these rules. We have the best fans who deserve the best entertainment. We have incredible stories to share with you, and our talented team of producers, writers, cast, crew are pursuing the most effective means to bring them to light. We thank you all for your support, and we look forward to continuing to grow our community as we enter the next chapter of these Voyages...”

Anthology is a web based fan production telling stories of science fiction and horror using space as the canvas. There current series include Starship Challenger and Mother.
